

Lavernall

Lavernall believes hard work never hurt anyone. And retirement is no time to slow down.

Twice retired from the federal government and the U.S. Army, Lavernall was not ready to let life pass him by. He believes getting back in the workforce is key to staying active, both mentally and physically.

Lavernall works as a finance clerk at CADC, work he found through the ARRA stimulus bill. Going back into the workforce helps him set an example for his granddaughter. He's molding in her a work attitude— an attitude he believes will be the foundation for her success in the workplace, as well as the success of future generations of young workers.

Stimulus funds is helping CADC provide assistance to the unemployed and train and educate the workforce for future economic growth. Across Central and South Arkansas, ARRA funding is helping people achieve economic success.

Lavernall Williams believes working hard helps set an example to future generations.